

Understanding and Treating the Cybersexually Addicted

Cybersexual addiction, a subtype of Hypersexual Disorder, has become a profound problem in today's culture. Conservative estimates suggest that 6-8% of all online users are experiencing marked difficulties and negative consequences related to their use of internet sexual content. Cybersexual addiction is an emerging field and mental health providers report being unprepared to address the many individuals they are encountering in their practices with these issues. This seminar will provide an overview of what cybersexual addiction is, how to diagnose it, and how to treat it. Additionally, this seminar will provide an overview of the neuroscience behind cybersexual addiction and the impact of the addiction on the individual. Finally, a three phase and task oriented approach to treatment will be presented.

Target Audience

Psychologist Social Workers Counselors
