Multicultural guidelines and ethical standards dictate that White therapists examine their own racial identity, privilege, and fragility to better serve clients of color. Dr. Fatter will review current trends in multicultural competency and discuss the clinical cost of the therapist being “colorblind.” This webinar will specifically focus on aspects of White culture, White privilege, White fragility, and Helms White racial identity model to help therapists self-assess their own White racial identity. In addition, Menahem’s H-I-P-P theory of how historical trauma is somatically held in the body will be presented to better understand the typical nervous system response in a White body and ways White therapists can work with their own somatic countertransference reactions when working with clients of color. Dr. Fatter will describe ways White privilege and White fragility can show up in clinical work as well as provide examples of specific types of microaggressions that can damage the therapeutic relationship when working with clients of color. Dr. Fatter will also discuss practical ways to bring up racial identity with clients of color and how to do a therapeutic repair when a relational rupture has occurred. Ethical considerations when working with White clients who express racist views will be addressed.

Outline

Begin 11 AM ET
Current trends in multicultural competency
Why White therapists need to look at our own White identity and role in systemic racism
What is White Culture?
White privilege & White fragility
START WHERE YOU ARE: Helms Model of White Identity Development
Menahem’s H-I-P-P theory and White Body Supremacy
BREAK 12:30-12:45 PM ET
Ways that White privilege and fragility show up in clinical work:
- Microaggressions

Multicultural Competency in Session:
- Ways to bring up race and racial identity with clients
- How to do a repair when a relational rupture has occurred
- Things to be aware of when processing traumatic histories with clients of color
- Ethical considerations when working with White clients with racist views

End 2:15PM ET

Our seminars are available in two formats: The first is a live, interactive webinar. If the webinar time is not convenient for you, you can purchase the Home Study version: It is a recorded version of the webinar. You will have to pass a test to earn CE’s for both the live webinar and the Home Study version.

General Information

The TZKseminars educational planning committee members and this seminar’s presenter have no relationship with a commercial interest pertinent to the content of this seminar.

Individuals with a disability or special need can go to tzk-seminars.com and read our Grievance Policy. Then, you can file a grievance on our Contact page. If you would like to file a grievance, go to tzkseminars.com and read our Grievance Policy. Then, you can file a grievance on our Contact page.

To cancel a registration, go to the Contact page. You can also send a written withdrawal request to the presenter’s name or to TZKseminars.com.

The Presenter

Daphne Fatter, Ph.D. earned a doctorate in Transpersonal Psychology from Naropa University in 2006. She was awarded her doctorate in Counseling Psychology from The Pennsylvania State University in 2011 and completed her clinical internship at the University of Tennessee Counseling Center. She completed a postdoctoral fellowship in Clinical Psychology at the Trauma Center, an affiliate of the Boston University School of Medicine, under the supervision of Dr. Bessel van der Kolk, MD. During her postdoctoral fellowship, she conducted a nine-month training program in Traumatic Stress Studies and also managed a pilot study on using neurofeedback to help treat posttraumatic stress disorder. For over a decade she has studied in both Buddhist and Taoist meditation traditions and has published on mindfulness. She has served as an ad-hoc expertise reviewer in the area of mindfulness from 2011-2013 for the Journal of Counseling Psychology, European Journal of Counseling Psychology, Psychotherapy, and Mindfulness Journal. She has taught mindfulness meditation at the Southern Methodist University, the University of Colorado at Boulder, the Pennsylvania State University, and the University of Tennessee Knoxville. She is the former Military Sexual Trauma Coordinator at the Fort Worth Veteran Affairs Outpatient Clinic. She is EMDR certified and is a Certified Internal Family Systems therapist. She has also completed advanced training in Cognitive Processing Therapy. She currently in private practice in Dallas, Texas.